

Same World

(Gershon Veroba)

Looking at my hand, it's clear it works the same each day.
I open my fingers to reach, I close them to take away.
It seems so small at first, but really it's not so simple at all.
Each finger must move with the other, the same as from brother to brother.

Together, you see, that we are as different as two people can be,
but standing and waiting in the same line.

Can't we try to change this world together,
until that day comes when we can travel home?
You and I, two wheels on a car that move with each other,
two different sides but the same direction, living in the same world.

People can live afraid. We all have the right to walk on our own, with fear as the ground underneath, leaving our trust at home.
But now I can set you free, since you've been dreaming the same as me.
Let's show we can all dream together. In peace we could see much better.

Turn It Around

(Gershon Veroba)

When the earth was created the word came down
Take this world and turn it around.
Now our glorious globe is in motion,
So give me more. Can't more meaning be found?
If the science of nature is all that you see
It's the message you're missing..the forest for the trees.

It's no mystery how through history
We survive with gifts of the mind,
So the sparks fly up and the suffering comes
But you heal with wisdom and time.
You can take what you've got, making more of yourself,
Then just show how you're growing to somebody else.

As you come to the peak of the mountain
There's an Eden that's waiting for you.
You can turn it around for your people to see,
You can show them the door, you can give them the key.
Our destination's getting closer,
So as you reach for the lock on the door,

You can turn it around, you can open your life,
You can sing a new song from the music inside.

Fix a bridge you've burned with a lesson learned
Teach yourself that ruins can rise.
Asking questions and finding the answers
Can inspire generations to try.
But you spin and you spin, you don't even know why.
Show your lessons to someone and walk by their side and...
(As you come to the peak of the mountain...)

You have chances to serve much more than you,
Grab the ring on the merry-go-round
Those powerful clouds will surround you,
So rise up and never look down.
It's a heavenly direction without any end.
You're spiraling upwards and bring a friend and...
(As you come to the peak of the mountain...)

... You can dance a new dance with the circle you make
If you take what you get up ahead
And turn it around instead.
